

Doors and Windows

Why should you consider replacing your door when you replace your windows? When replacing windows to improve energy efficiency, many customers are surprised that their energy bills are not drastically reduced. One reason for this could be very simple; the largest opening in the home is not properly sealed – the front door.

What many homeowners may not realize is that when new, energy-efficient windows have been installed, the warm or cool air inside your home will rush towards the least insulated part of the home. Often, that point of escape is the front door. In order to maximize energy efficiency, consider replacing your doors at the same time as you replace your windows.

Like replacing windows, replacing an entry door can give your home a fresh new look. Be sure to consider consultation with a qualified designer (to help you get the best Feng Shui) and a qualified contractor (to help you get the perfect installation).

Are you ready to move forward but you don't know where to find the perfect contractor to get your job done? Let NARI-BIE help you! Founded in 1952 as the Business Industries Exchange, and affiliating with the National Association of the Remodeling Industry in 2012, NARI-BIE is a local not-for-profit trade association. To learn more about NARI-BIE, interested readers can visit our website at nari-bie.org or contact our office by calling 610.323.1700.

Members of NARI-BIE are full service contractors, design-build firms, architects, engineers, manufacturers, suppliers, distributors, subcontractors, lenders, and other affiliated professionals who work in or with the construction industry. Through their membership, NARI-BIE members are bound by a code of ethics, and have access to the latest information in the industry through publications, educational programs, education seminars, and conferences.

It is the mission of NARI-BIE to bring building industry professionals together to collaborate; educate; foster working relationships; and promote member professionals to the community. NARI-BIE prides itself on being the community's trusted resource for home and building projects and services.